1. Develop a bank of resources to draw upon when addressing online privacy with young people, seniors, and other vulnerable populations.
2. More thoroughly understand chains of surveillance and data collection, and feel a greater sense of agency within these systems.
3. Become a smarter, stronger internet user and repent for any previous happy-go-lucky online tomfoolery.
4. Learn new and effective ways to advocate for myself, my patrons, and our community.
5. Engage in complicated and important conversations with this (awesome) group, during this course and beyond.
