Kelly McElroy
LFI Week 1
11 June 2018

What are your personal goals for this course?

1. Build my basic knowledge of privacy and security issues.
2. Get my own shit together so that I can speak from lived experience about using the kinds of tools and approaches I advocate for.
3. Develop talking points for discussing privacy issues with administrators/muckety mucks, colleagues, and library users.
4. Strengthen my local/regional network of privacy advocates, in order to better connect library folks to advocates already in their communities…and to make sure that those advocates see library folks as possible allies.
5. Create flexible teaching materials covering content using critical/feminist pedagogies.
